centre point give homeless young people a future

The Centrepoint Bursary

Bethany grew up in care from age 11 after her grandmother passed away. She became pregnant at 16, but completed her GCSEs and A-Levels and she is now managing parenting with a full-time degree in International Public and Social Policy at the LSE with financial support from the Centrepoint bursary.

"Childcare is so expensive and there is no way I could afford it on student finance. It could cover a very small proportion, but it wouldn't be enough to dedicate myself to my studies and do the very best I can," Bethany enthuses. "It is so important for me to be able to access full-time and long-term childcare. It was one of the things I worried about, but it's actually going to be there for the duration which is amazing."

-Bethany, 20
